

2014

A map of the United States showing the locations of the 10 study sites in 2014. The sites are marked with colored dots: 4 teal dots in the Northeast and Southeast, and 6 yellow dots in the Southeast and West.

- Negative
- Positive

2015

A map of the United States showing the locations of the four study sites in 2015. The sites are marked with colored dots: a yellow dot in the Northeast (New York), a red dot in the Southeast (Florida), a green dot in the Southwest (California), and a blue dot in the Midwest (Illinois).

2016

A map of the United States showing the locations of the five study sites in 2016. The sites are marked with yellow dots in the central and eastern US, and a grey dot in the southwest. The map is titled '2016'.

2017

A map of the United States showing sampling locations in 2017. The map includes Alaska and Hawaii. Yellow dots indicate sampling sites in the Northeast, Midwest, and South. The dots are located in the following states: New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama.